Congo: [President Mobutu and most of his associates apparently still are not focusing fully on the critical situation in the northeastern Congo.]

[Notwithstanding the disruption in the northeast and the danger that the Katangan mutineers in Kisan-gani (formerly Stanleyville) may be about to move south, Mobutu remains preoccupied with his vendetta with the Belgians.]

[There are some signs that Mobutu has recently begun to take greater note of the government's parlous state, and he may move to alleviate some of the causes of bickering in the army high command. However, even a unified government and stronger army leadership would find it extremely difficult to restore the government's presence in the northeast.]
